wagers Burned Up on Keene's Suffrage Cause Plunge in That Direction, While the Odds Against the Champion sprinter Soar and Are Then Taken

Many of the wise fraternity were fooled yesterday by a clever trick played on them by the people behind Roseben, the champion When the first prices were shown the bookmakers on their slates in the Be mont Park betting ring Roseben was quoted at 3 to 5, while James R. Keene's Suffrage was opened at 3 to 1. There was little speculation the outset until Sol Lichtenstein's runners hegan to scurry from book to book offering $200 wagers on Mr. Keene's filly. As Lichtenstein is close to Dave Johnson, the owner of seben, it was immediately taken for granted that Roseben would not do and that Suffrage would surely beat him. In a jiffy the word was passed around that Suffrage was in.
This information pervaded the ring and players and layers fell for it alike. Comuissioners from the clubhouse were soon in evidence, rushing from book to book with Suffrage bets. They were followed by a mob of excited men who also bet on the Keene ally with blind confidence.

"There's nothing doing with Roseben!" was the cry as the smart fellows steered clear of raised the price against him to even money. At this point Big Tim Sullivan's agents appeared in the throng and got down a good bet on Suffrage, but for the place only. It was quickly noised about that the Senator had bet on the Keene filly to win, which caused another rush to get aboard, while Roseben's price went up to 7 to 5. Then it was that Dave Johnson, Frank Farrell and other big operators who were in the know began to ake Roseben. The horses were on the way of the post when thousands of dollars were offered and accepted on the big sprinter, who was finally pounded down to even money. Johnson alone is said to have wager $25,000, getting better than even money for nearly all of it. When Roseben came home on the bit those that had bet on Suffrage were struck temporarily dumb. They scratched their heads and kicked themselves mentally, because they realized that they had been cleverly tricked. The money burned up on Suffrage by Lichtenstein was charged up to the Roseben people, who had actually forced the books to give them a suitable price about the champion in spite of public form. Pittsburg Phil used these methods, which are perfectly legitimate, on many occasions. It was his custom to make personal bets on one horse, which forced the price up against another backed heavily at the last moment by his agents who were waiting for a certain quotation. Roseben was never in greater physical condition. He could have easily smashed the world's record for six furlongs if he had been extended. As was Shaw, could not restrain him, even though he did his best to cover up his real Johnson saw the race from the grand stand, and when Roseben took the leadership at the outset the plunger in his enthusiasm

Barring the successes of Roseben and Hot Toddy, the books fared well on the day, The smart money went on Cloisteress in the first race, while Winning Hand, who was generally selected by the tipsters and the handicappers, went up to 13 to 5. There was a real killing with Optician, running in the colors of the Oneck Stable, in the last race. Entries to many of the stake events of the Brighton Beach Racing Association to be decided in 1907 and 1908 will close at the office of the association, 215 Montague street, Brooklyn, next Monday. Among the events for two-year-olds to be run in 1907, for which yearlings are now eligible, are some of the richest prizes of the year. Chief among these is the Brighton Junior Stakes of $15,000. The best fillies will have an opportunity to measure strides in the Venus Stakes, for $7,500, at five and a half furlongs, while both colts and fillies are eligible for the Neptune Stakes, of $7,500, at six furlongs. Yearling nominations may now be made for the events of 1908, when the contestants will be three-year-olds. Brighton Derby, at one mile and a half, has a valuation of $15,000 and the Iroquois Stakes, at one mile and a quarter is worth $7,500. The new feature stake for fillies and mares now yearlings and upward, known as the Queen Stakes, of the value of $7,500, is at one mile and a half. This latter event should furnish a much better race than the old time Oaks, which was for three-year-old fillies exclusively. The Queen should prove one of the most popular events of the Brighton

Roseben, the champion sprinter, was in magnificent form yesterday when he won the Manhattan Handicap, for all ages, six fur-longs straightaway, at Belmont Park in a gallop. He picked up 147 peunds and making all the pace came home with six lengths to spare in the excellent time of 1:121-5. The big fellow opened at 3 to 5, but went back in the betting to 7 to 5 because of a heavy play on James R. Keene's Suffrage, backed from 3 to 1 down to 9 to 5. But at the last moment the right money was wagered on Roseben until he was wiped off the boards. At the start there was a collision in which Roseben bumped Prince Hamburg, the latter's jockey, L. Williams, falling to the ground unburt. Then Roseben set a terrific pace, and it was all over but the shouting. Suffrage, who received thirty-one pounds from Roseben, took the place in a hard drive from Handzarra to to 1, by three parts of a length. The latter was in receipt of thirty-five pounds from George S. Davis, well backed at 5 to 1, made nearly all the running in the second race, a handicap for two-year-olds, six furlongs, and was an easy winner by two and a half lengths in 1:14. Stray, backed down to 8, stood off Toddles, 3 to 5 favorite, for the place, the latter, under Sewell's weak ride, losing it by a nose.

George Odom put over a good thing in Oraculum, 9 to 2, in the fifth race, for two-year-olds, six furlongs. The Sorcerer colt cut out a swift pace and was never headed, beating Barnigo, 9 to 10 favorite, by a length and a half in 1:13 3-5. Baringo beat Lady Vera, played down to 8, by a neck.

The Oneck Stable's Optician, played from 15 down to 8, ran a fast mile in the last race, for platers at that distance, and fairly breezed home two lengths in front of Dekaber, 10 to 1, with Panique, also 10 to 1, just nosing Macy, Jr., 3 to 1 favorite, out of third place. The start killed the chances of Hyperion, well supported at 4.

Mr. Earl's Winning Hand, in spite of the fact that she opened at 8 to 5 and went back to 13 to 5, captured the first race, for maiden iillies at a mile. Lawrence Waterbury's Cloisteress was made a 2 to 1 favorite and set a good pace to the middle of the stretch, where Winning Hand, who had been second up to that point, wore her down and beat her a length and a half in 1:41. Frilis, 8 to 1, was three lengths back. Two favorites won, but all of the other winners were well taken. The attendance was about 12,000. The summaries:

STIFF GAMES FOR ARMY AND NAVY TEAMS TO-DAY.

Among the football games scheduled for o-day the Princeton-Navy contest will at tract most attention, this because of the prominence of both of the contracting parties. Two years ago the Midshipmen defeated Prince on 10 to 9 and last year the two did not meet The Navy hopes for no such good fortune as she had in 1904, the best she expects being to hold the Tigers to a small score. There is not stronger team on the gridiron at this writing than Princeton, who has had no mishaps to speak of as yet to any of her players, and the Navy is not as far along in the development of men and playing, to say nothing of material. Two big line men of the Navy, Chambers and Shaffroth, guards, are out of the game with injuries, and fumbling and slowness have characterized the work of the backfield.

The Army, too, has a stiff game on its hands. The West Pointers go against Colgate, which eleven tied Cornell two weeks ago. One of the spectators at the Pennsylvania, Swarthnore game will be Fielding H. Yost, the Michigan coach, who comes on to get pointers for use when the Wolverines rub up against the Quakers on November 17. The schedule

There are half a dozen or so men on the Harvard squad who can punt well and there is quality as well as quantity among the kickers. Burr, the big guard, is pretty nearly the best distance punter in the East, and he is dependable. Just how so much kicking ability will help the team any is not clear, rulless, of course, some good kicker has to leave the game. Only one man can kick at a time, and Burr doubtless will continue to do the punting. Both Burr and Foster have been punting over sixty yards in games, and that's booting 'em some. Burr, from all accounts, is playing his guard position in bangup style. He did that last year and is still better this year. Kersburg is counted on to make one of the best guards Harvard ever has had, and with Parker at centre the Crimson is formidable in the middle of the line. Osborne, Inches and Hoar, the leading candidates for tackles, have never played against Yale. Coach Reid is trying to make a tackle out of Pierce, who was a substitute guard last year. Starr is being hard pressed for quarterback by Hall, substitute end last year and a very fast youth. quality as well as quantity among the

The Cornell Sun prints some figures to show the ground gaining prowess of the team. Earle, who played only a few minutes against Niagara, gained 140 yards in fourteen tries, an average of 10 yards a play. Gibson gained 72 yards in thirtgen plays, an average gain of 5½ yards. McCutcheon's total gain of 84 yards represented an average gain of nearly 7 yards, and Walder advanced the ball an average of 5 yards per plunge in ten plays. Baboock made 29 yards in three plays and Watson one line plunge of 10 yards. There was good running back of kicks by Jamieson. Eight kicks were rushed back for an average of 17 yards. In six plays Mason carried the ball 24 yards. The four touchdowns were made by advancing the ball steadily for the respective distances of 72, 64, 30 and 50 yards. Nothing in all this to indicate that the ball cannot be rushed consistently under the ten yard rule.

Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago is working on a combination shift and forward pass. The whole backfield shifts and re-shifts and the forward pass is brought into use at the same time.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 12.—Since the game with Holy Cross Coach Folsom has been putting his men through hard practice, trying especially to develop speed. The material for backs is rather scarce and an urgent call has been sent over the college for more material. Coach Glaze has developed some fast ends. Grebenstein, captain of the basketball team, has been showing up in fine form and will be tried in the game to-morrow. The line men have been given some solid work and several new men are being tried out by Coach Gage, Hobbs, captain of Andover last year, and Blake are doing great work at tackle positions. Douglas, Storrs, Blake and Cooper are laid up with bad ankles, while Ruxton is out of the game with a slight attack of appendicitis. The following men are at the training table: Kennedy, C. Smith, M. K. Smith, Blake, Brusse, Dillinsham, Lang, Hobbs, Glaze, Greenwood, Stearns, Bankart, Stewart, Stuart, Pritchard, McDonald and Lillard.

New Haven, Oct. 12.—Yale's practice today was short and sharp, and the coaches kept the squad moving at top pace all the time. Speed and technique were the two factors sought for in the work, and the boys were hammered at constantly. At times Coach Rockwell went in as quarterback on the varsity to demonstrate his theories. He finally got the tricks moving according to his liking, and the plays ran off very smoothly.
Tad Jones at quarter will probably not being to-morrow's game against Holy Cross because of a slight muscle bruise that came to him yesterday. Bigelow at right tackle will probably be in the contest, as he worked today, but Roome will not be in his place in the back field. As Holy Cross is a light, lively eleven like the Springfield Training School team, the coaches are waiting to see if Yale will be able to hold the opposing offence any better than on Wednesday.

better than on Wednesday.

ITHACA, Oct. 12.—Only light practice was held by the Cornell football squad to-day in anticipation of a hard struggle with the Bucknell eleven to-morrow afternoon. The varsity was run through signals in the formation which will start against the Pennsylvanians. Van Orman and Babcock were on the ends. Cook and Dann tackles, Thompson and O'Kourke gnards, Newman centre, Gibson an Earle halfbacks, Pollak quarterback, Walder fullback. The gates were kept tightly barred while some of Coach Warner's pet tricks were tried out. The work was fast and snappy, the lethargy which had marked the playing of the eleven in the past being entirely overcome. Pollak, the regular quarter, who had been out of the game for nearly two weeks, got back in harness to-day and was largely responsible for the new spirit, rattling off the plays in rapid succession and passing the ball swiftly and accurately.

Cambridge, Oct. 12.—Harvard took a little slump in her football practice this afternoon, the second team holding the first on downs twice, once six inches from the goal line and once on the 12 yard line. The varsity in twelve minuted was able to score only one touchdown, where was able to score only one touchdown, where it forced the second to make a safety once. Mason, second string fullback, injured his shoulder to-day and will be out for two weeks. Apollonio, first string at this position, chipped a bone in his leg earlier in the week, and so Gray, the third choice for the position, will have to be played. A lot of time was given to kicking of all sorts to-day. Barr and Parker came out early for place kicking and Starr, Newhall and Hall for drop kicking. Later there was punting of all kinds.

Lewisburg, Pa., Oct. 12.—A cheering, enthusiastic crowd of several hundred students accompanied the Bucknell football team to the station this evening when they departed for Ithaca, where they are to do battle with Cornell to-morrow. The Bucknell men depart for Ithaca this year with hopes of producing great results. Last year Cornell defeated the local team 24 to 0. But this year the Bucknell team is far stronger, especially at this time, since Cockill, Bucknell '05, the expert football coach, has been here the last week assisting Coach Hoekins in training of the men. Among the players the feeling is that if they do not win they will at least hold their opponents down to a close score.

New York University's football team easily defeated De La Salla Institute on Ohio Field

AMHERAT, Oct. 12.—The first football game of the schedule will be played to morrow against the strong Tufts eleven. Two practices have been the order every day for the last two weeks, in the afternoon field work and signal practice in the gymnasium every evening. Much dissatisfaction has become manifest among the undergraduates on account of the secret practice which has been held every day. The coaches assert that this is necessary because of the few rules and the fact that the Amherat schedule is so late in beginning. The quarterback problem has been solved and Beach '97, is a fixture on the eleven. The best find this year was R. McCoy, Jr., the star fullback of the Shadyside Academy, who reported last week and will undoubtedly make good at tackle. The strict eligibility rules have again caused trouble in the line. Osborn, who has played guard for three years, and is considered the best lineman on the aquad, is now awaiting the decree of the faculty.

lineman on the squad, is now awaiting the decree of the faculty.

Middletown, Conn., Oct. 12.—Football prospects at Wesleyan are again beginning to assume the favorable outlook which they took on before the opening of college, but which were overshadowed temporarity by the unsuccessful attempts of some of the new and old men in passing their examinations. However, by dint of professional tutoring several of the men who had been relied on to strengther; the line have donned football togs again and are in the lineup, so that in the opening game on Andrus field to-morrow Wesleyan will put in the field a much stronger eleven against Bowdoin than that which faced Yale and Brown. One of the most valuable men who has now downed his examinations is Seeley, the sig 215 pounds guard, who had been relied on with Taylor and Coote to make a centre combination averaging about 205 pounds. Palmer, captain of the Hackettstown eleven in 1905, has been allowed to enter and will take Jake Reiter's place at end, the latter still being kept out of the game by faculty restrictions. Norton, the Boston English High School crack, has also entered and will prove a valuable man back of the line. One of the best of the new men is Van Tassell, last year on the Blair Hall eleven, who made a fine showing at halfback in the Yale game. Tomorrow's game with Bowdoin will be the first stilletic contest in which the two colleges have participated in over a decade.

Annapolis, Oct. 12.—On the eve of the Princeton game, the great contest of the year on the local grounds, the coaches and friends of the navy are not at all satisfied with the shape the team is in and do not look forward to a very creditable showing to-morrow. The practice this afternoon was devoted entirely to signal work and handling punts. In the latter line, in which the backs were very weak in last Wednesday's game, kick after kick was given to Capt. Spencer and Norten, who generally receive the leather during the game. Spencer showed some improvement, but Norton, who last season was, very reliable, seems to have gotten in a rut where be cannot squeeze the ball successfully.

John Enright Gets a Distance of 152 Feet

The Angler's Club held its first fly and bait easting tournament on Harlem Mere in Central Park vesterday. Years ago the National Rod and Reel Association used to hold tourna-ments in Central Park, but the last was held in 1889, and then the association died a natural death. The Angler's Club is a new organizaopen one and it was marked by a performance that will long stand as a record. John Enright of Castle Conneil, Ireland, came over to take part in the tournament and in a two handed salmon fiv cast for distance be beat the record. placing the mark 152 feet. #### AUTO RUN ON ONE CHARGE.] Frank Babecck, Jr., Makes the Trip From This City to Philadelphia.

Frank Babcock of the Automobile Club of Buffalo yesterday drove his electric carriage from New York to Philadelphia on one charge of the batteries. He started yesterday morning from the headquarters of the New York Motor Club, at Broadway and Fifty-fourth street, and accomplished the journey of about a hundred miles to the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in good style. He crossed the ferry from Camden after dark and demonstrated that his batteries were not exhausted by lighting the electric lamps on his dashboard. Near Palmyra, N. J., he encountered very heavy roads, which he estimated as requiring enough extra electricity to have run the car for five miles. A number of New York and Buffalo a utomobilists accompanied him in twasgasolene cars, S. B. Stevens, J. E. De Mar, C. A. Benjamin, T. Francis Moore and Louis R. Smith. Auto Boats Race for Challenge Cup. The auto boats Dixie and Expdne were to have raced yesterday for the auto boat chal-Club. The Skedaddle asked to be let in on the race and there was much talk of a match for $10,000 a side. This, however, dwindled down to a match for a dinner for twenty, and these three boats were withdrawn, as their owners did not care to race. This left the Aero, owned by S. M. Beach, and the Bithat, owned by A. Jackson Stone, in the contest, and he regatta committee of the Larchmont Yacht Club started these two over a thirty mile course at 4:50 o'clock. The Bithat finished some time after sundown, but at a late hour last night the Aero had not been heard from.

The regatta committee too, were stranded on Long Island, owing to their launch having broken down. If all hands get to shore safely there will be another race at 1:30 o'clock this morning. If the Bithat wins she will get the cup. If the Aero is successful there will be another race at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, as the match calls for the best two out of three races.

MISS CURTIS AND MISS ADAMS PLAY FOR TITLE TO-DAY.

Four Foot Put Requiring Nerve Wins for Miss Adams From Mrs. Barlow o Seventeenth Green-Miss Phipps Is Easily Beaten at the Same Stage.

BOSTON, Oct. 12 .- It will be Back Bay vs Dorchester in the final of the women's golf championship to-morrow, an ending to the national tournament that fills Boston with pride. Miss Harriet Curtis is the city's hope and Miss Molly Adams has the backing of all the suburbanites. They belong to the same clubs and the two young women are zealous sisters of the Women's Golf Association of Soston. The Cox trophy will have only to be transferred from the Oakley Country to either the Essex County or Wollaston club. Miss Adams beat Mrs. Barlow by and 1, and Miss Curtis won from Miss Phipps by 3 and 1.

The gallery of about 1,500 went to the seveneenth green with each match, two unusually stirring finishes. The winners both made good starts, but they were on the anxious seat on the last few holes. The seventeenth hole is of only 142 yards and in a glen. The crowd lined it from tee to green and it took nerve to play through the sea of glaring eyes and eager faces, but Miss Phipps was the only one not to make a good tee shot. There could be no more striking instance of the concentration of the gallery on a match than the dropping of the curtain on the Miss Adams and Mrs. Barlow duel. The Boston girl would have been stimed but that Mrs. Barlow's ball stopped within six inches. The Phila-delphian lifted and Miss Adams took her stance for the four foot put. To hole meant a 3 and victory; a miss and a good put by Mrs. Barlow meant the carrying on of the match possibly to an extra hole.

She is a quick and confident putter, this Boston girl, and she did not keep the crowd long in suspense. She gave a last glance along the line and a loving pat on the ball. There was a hush as it bounded forward and made a dive into the cup, and then cheers and handclaps for Miss Adams to end the tension.

Miss Curtis: ..... 5 7 6 4 3 5 3 8 5-46 ..... 7 7 6 5 6 5 4 3 *-43-89 Miss Phipps:

The Boston girl made all the early running against Mrs. Barlow. She got the first in 5 and a lucky half on the second in 7. Luck again favored Miss Adams on the third. Mrs. Barlow was nicely on in 4. Miss Adams playing her fifth out from the bunker and then holing from the edge of the green for a half in 6. The fickle goddess was all for Mrs. Barlow on the fourth green. She had Miss Adams stimled, who in trying to break it by a follow shot or something of the sort hit Mrs. Barlow shot or something of the sort hit Mrs. Barlow shot or something of the sort hit Mrs. Barlow shot or something of the sort hit Mrs. Barlow shot or something of the sort hit Mrs. Barlow shot in the match. A brace of fours returned the lead to Miss Adams, but Mrs. Barlow squared the match again by a 5 on the eighth, after the approaches of both had rolled back from the top of the hill. They halved the ninth in 6, making nothing doing for the out?.

The tenth looked like a sure win for Miss Adams, who was one better to the green. Mrs. Barlow saved herself by laying a stimie, and they halved in 6. They halved the long eleventh in 7. The next is the most difficult hole on the course for the women. The green is on a plateau guarded in front by a guilly the long eleventh in 7. and they halved in 6. They halved the long eleventh in 7. The next is the most difficult hole on the course for the women. The green is on a plateau guarded in front by a gully trap. Miss Adams rolled up one of the prettiest approach puts imaginable and went down in 4, to 5 for Mrs. Barlow. This made Miss Adams 1 up.

The lead was increased to 2 up for the Boston girl at the thirteenth, which was played poorly by Mrs. Barlow from the moment she teed up her ball. Miss Adams was down in 4. A half in 6 at the fourteenth, which Miss Barlow was enabled to make through the Boston girls overstrong approach, was encouraging to the friends of the Philadelphia golfer. They lost hope, however, when she silced her second to the fifteenth into the rough, to find her ball resting on top of another which must have been lost in some previous round. How it could have rolled into such a position and stayed there on a rounded surface is one of the mysteries which will never be solved. Mrs. Barlow attempted to play it back to the fair green, but only succeeded in hitting it against a tree. When she finally succeeded in getting back to the fair green she was so hopelessly behind on strokes that she gave up the hole, making the Boston player dormic 3.

Both were on the sixteenth green in two perfect shots. Miss Adams try for a 4 laid Mrs. Barlow a half stimy which she broke by a pretty shot that borrowed from a slight undulation, so that she won in 4. Dormic 2, Miss Adams ended the match on the seventeenth. The cards:

as a Sting climax to the many star plays came Siner Brown's great stop of a furious liner in the ninth inning. There was a man on second and two out for the Americans at Brown. There was no choice for Brown but Me had no time to get out of the way and was quickly leaped to his feet, picked up the ball and threw Isbell out at first, ending the game. A foot one way or the other in the direction of the drive would have let the ball go safe, scored Jones and tied the score, but fate willed in favor of the Nationals.

The lonely run which meant so much to the striving teams came in the seventh. Chance opened with a Texas leaguer to right Eddie Hahn, whose nose was not so badly injured as was supposed, was able to play, and lost the ball for a second, thus giving it a chance to land safely. There was some doubt as to the ability of Hahn to get the ball, but his momentary hesitation lost whatever chance he had. Steinfeldt and Tinker sacrificed in clever fashion, both going out Altrock to Donohue, and put the manager on third. This left it up to Johnny Evers. Ther chance be had. Steinfeldt and Tinker sacrificed in clever fashion, both going out Altrock to Donohue, and put the manager on third. This left it up to Johnny Evers. There were two out and a hit was needed to win the game. Johnny waited patiently and then tapped one of Nick's best into left field and scored Chance with the only run of the game. Johnny was afterward caught stealing, but no one appeared to care.

The weather was the best that has happened alone the series opened, and as a resut the largest crowd of all, 18,383 enthusiastic fans, turned out to see the game that was the turning point of the series.

Every available seat was filled with the exception of a few box seats. The circus and there were thousands standing in different a parts of the field. It was one of the largest crowds ever gathered in the South Side Park, so but do well was it handled that the spectators but do well was it handled that the spectators ould not get a fair idea of its vastness.

To-morrow the scene shifts to the west side and it is expected that the largest crowd of all will turn out, only to be exceeded by the vast gathering which will throng the South Side Park on Sunday. A Sunday game is a certainty now, as it will take two or more games to decide the series.

Miner Brown pitched a remarkably fine game all the way and secured revenge for the beating handed him by Nick Altrock in the opening game. Nick exerted himself to the limit to duplicate his feat of Tuesday, but failed by a small margin. In the point of base hits, Brown had a wide margin in his favor, but that does not show in the score. Nick pening and his expendent the first four innings. Donohue drew a base on balls in the second, but was caught stealing. Steinfeld appeared to forget the fact that Hahn is a right field hitter and played over too far for him. His hit was a grounder that would have been captured by Tinker had he been playing in his usual position for a right field hitter.

Only twelve men faced Brown in the seventh and eighth innings. With two out

Johnny Evers continued the brilliant work which has marked his fielding in the series by going behind second base in the fourth iming and stopping an almost sure bingle from the stick of Pat Dougherty. Miner Brown made a star one handed stop of a high bounder from Denohue's bat in the seventh.

The double plays also added to the speed of the work of both teams in the field. In the ninth Chance was on second with one man our, when Tinker sacrificed. The manager tried to come home on the play, but was nipped at the plate on a fast throw by Donohue.
